DD/S [REDACTED]

14 June 1957

1. George Carey telephoned to say that he thought two of our recent Regulations could quite possibly be in error. He referred to Regulation [REDACTED] which he claimed discriminated against pregnant women. The second was a Regulation on "education" concerning which he said the word "adoptive" was subject to misinterpretation.

2. [REDACTED] Office of Communications, were up to brief me, Gates, Larry Houston, and Ed Saunders on their proposal to have the Agency support, in part, the establishment of an [REDACTED]. It was agreed that we should proceed to establish a clear justification [REDACTED] in which case the Agency could assist financially. However, we did not sign off on any papers pending a clearer understanding of just what is going to be done and to what extent we should support it.

3. Met briefly with Norman Paul and [REDACTED] concerning our legislation. The Civil Service Commission has now suggested that we amend it so as to provide that at least two of the last six years prior to retirement would be spent overseas. Although this is not desirable, it seems certain that we are not going to get anything better. Another major point was that the retirement benefits should be for "staff" employees only. However, it seems reasonably clear that we would complicate our legislation by trying to incorporate these changes and that there are other ways in which they can be taken care of. In this connection, I asked Rud to find out what the Department of State does about their indigenous employees; they have several thousand.

4. [REDACTED] telephoned to follow up on his inquiry to [REDACTED] about treating the DD/I people [REDACTED] the same as we do [REDACTED]'s group. I told him that as a matter of principle we felt that this should be done and that I would ask [REDACTED] to follow up on it as soon as he returned to duty.

5. [REDACTED] telephoned to say that he was going on leave for a month and that [REDACTED] would be up to see me about the administrative organization in [REDACTED]

I told him that since I had not been to [REDACTED] it was a little difficult for me to pass judgment in this instance but that I would be glad to talk to George.
